

100 Houses NATURE AND NURTURE

HOUSE T

monovolume architecture+design / 2018 / Merano, Italy

With illusionary aspects and novel design elements, this playfully contemporary design adapts to the sloping terrain by placing two separate volumes at different levels on the landscape.

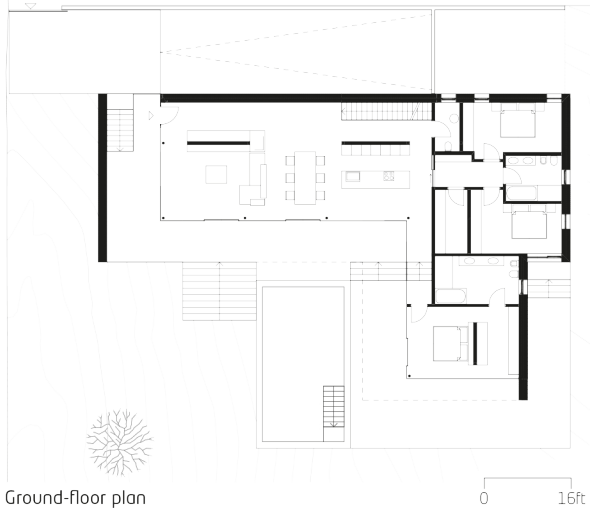

A flat, gravel-covered roof and spirited facade with leaf-shaped perforations make interesting references to the natural environment, while refined floating staircases, inside and out, give the home an über-modern, otherworldly ambiance.

The pure lines of the design are enhanced by exposed concrete and glass facades, which make the home appear clear and light. Outside, the crystal blue pool and manicured lawns create a clean and pleasing contrast with the home's all-white exterior while establishing a seamless relationship between interior and exterior.

HOUSE T

Ground-floor plan